Mary, a former all-conference player at Western Washington University, began coaching for WFC Rangers in 2002. In the years since she joined the Rangers coaching staff, she has conducted private training sessions, taught at camps and academies, and worked as a head and assistant coach for many teams. Besides her work with Rangers and Whatcom Soccer Academy, Mary served as an assistant coach at Whatcom Community College from 2008 to 2010 and an assistant coach at WWU in 2011. Mary currently plays for the Aldergrove Women's Classics Gold team. She played high school soccer at Bishop Blanchet in Seattle and played club soccer for Emerald City FC. Mary was a first-team all-conference player at WWU in 2000 and 2001, and was a second-team all-conference player in 2002. She earned the United States Soccer Federation 'C' national license in 2011. "Soccer has given me so much, and I want to be able to share my love of the game to others," Mary said. "I want players to find success, big or little, and feel joy in true form. I want players to see that working towards goals as a group creates a bond, as well as provides tools to use later in life."
