Molly, who played collegiately at Western Washington University, has been with WFC Rangers since 2008, coaching girls teams from U13 through U18. Her teams have won several summer tournaments in her tenure with the Rangers, including the Baker Blast and Snohomish Bigfoot Tournament. Molly played from 2002 to 2006 at Western following a four-year varsity career at Skyline High School in Issaquah. She holds the Washington Youth Soccer 'E' coaching license. "I want soccer to be fun and for the girls I am coaching to have fun," Molly said. "I want to see desire, dedication and determination to become the best they can be at soccer. How you practice is how you play, so I expect girls to not only show up to practice, but to be there mentally and physically willing to learn and get better. I absolutely love soccer and want to share my knowledge and experience with people that want it."
