

Players must feel the need to defend the clubs history and culture

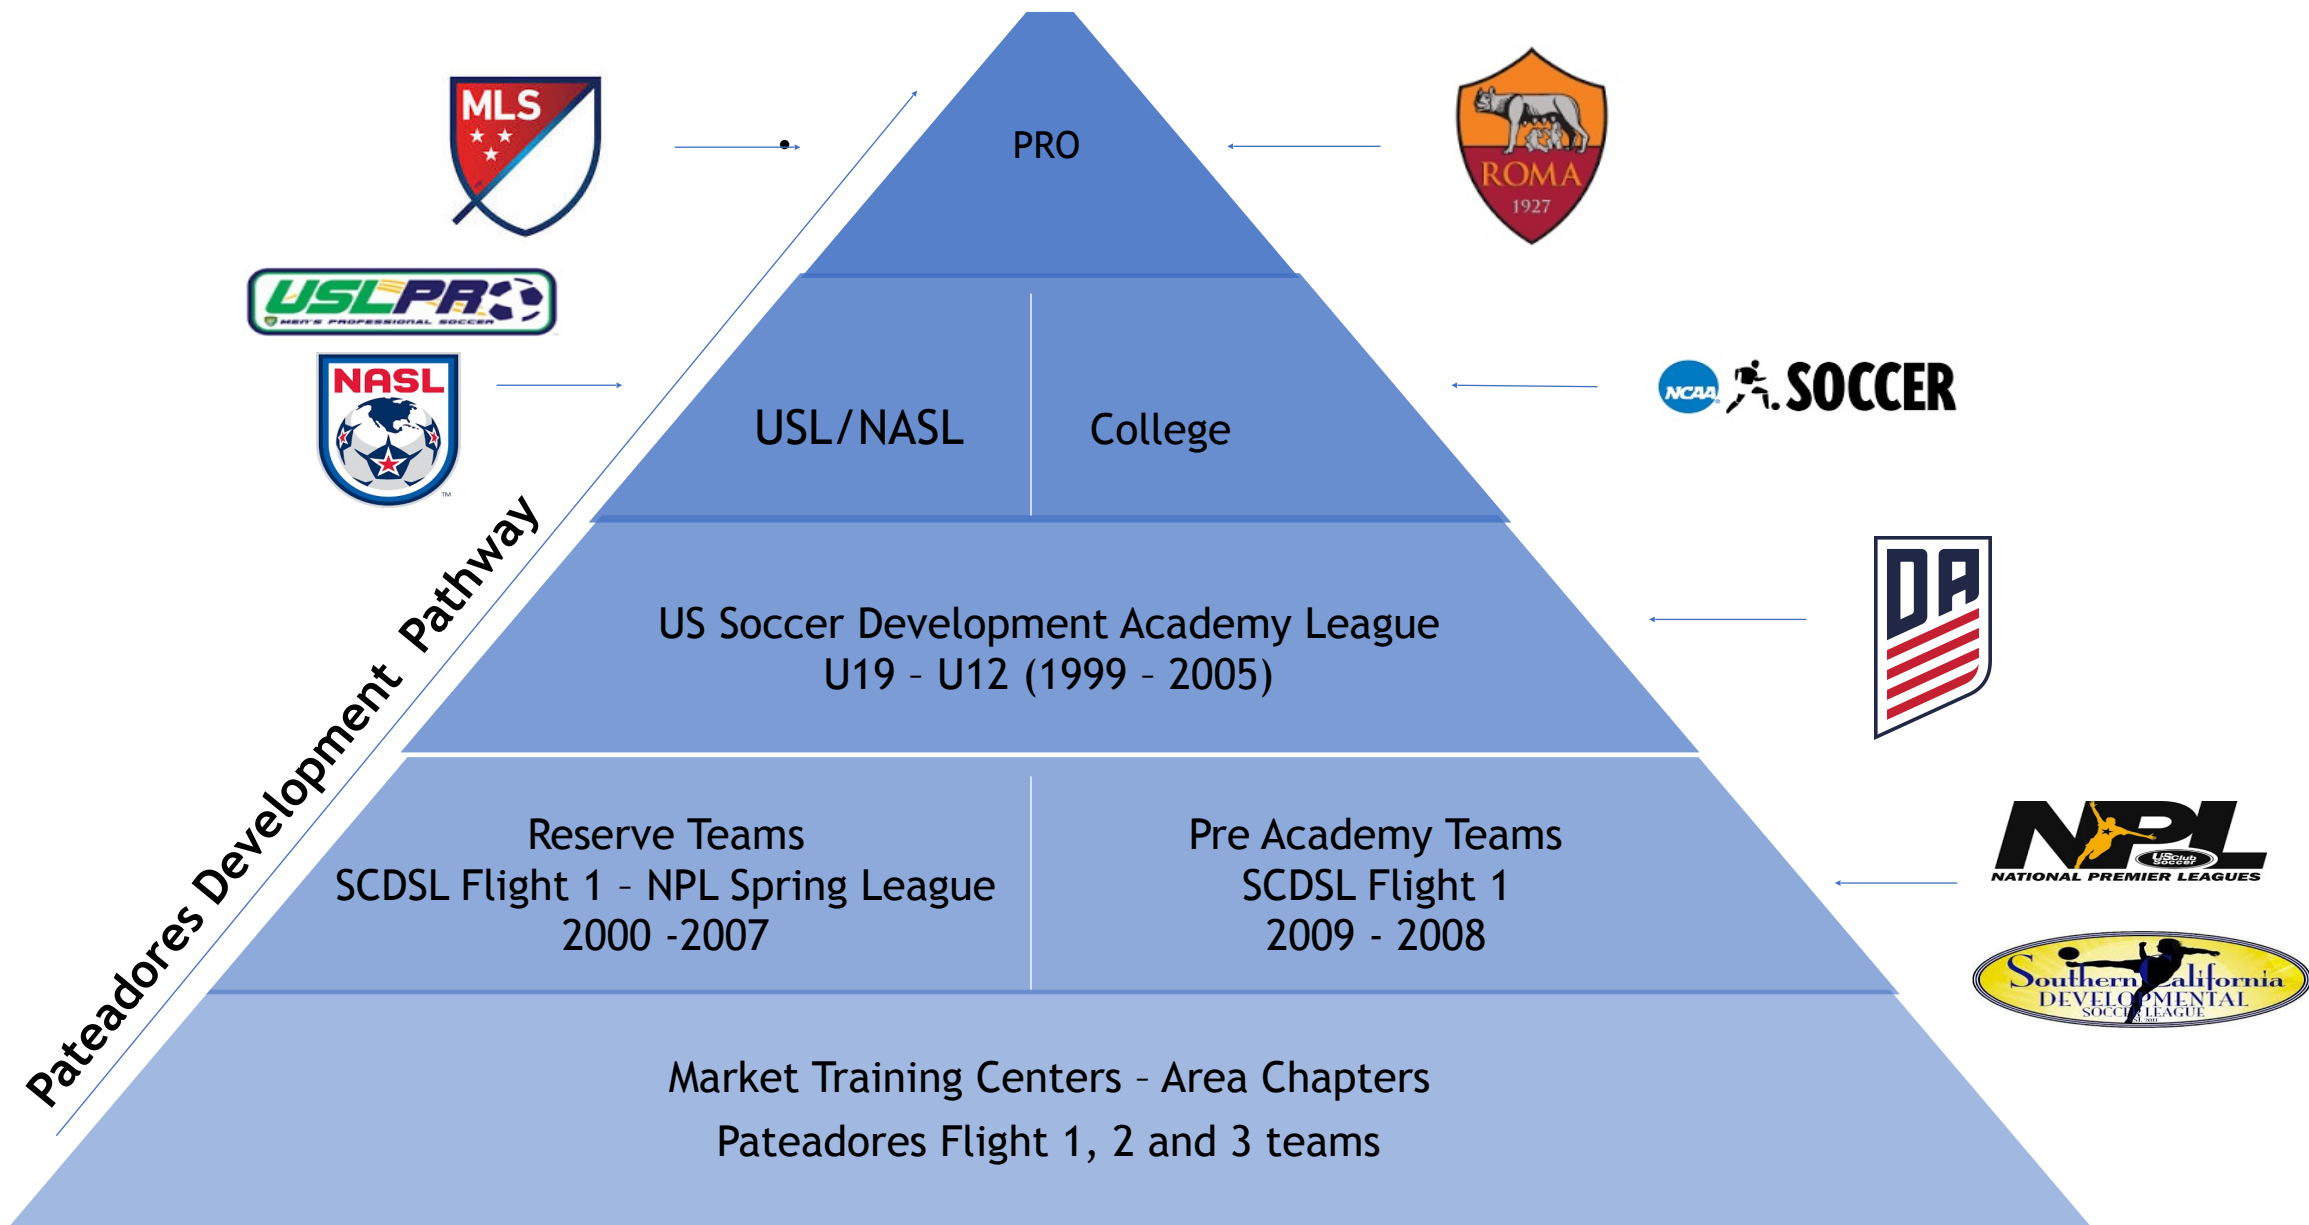

To train and develop technically sound, tactically intelligent, physically strong and motivated players. We are committed to developing players in a challenging and positive environment who can reach their full potential and positively impact the game of soccer. It is important that all our players are prepared for the increasing demands of the game as they progress from the basic phase (age 6) to the advanced phase (age 19).

Creating The Right Environment

FORMATION

Our Academy coaches are expected to create a player centric environment conducive to high-level player development opportunities. This will be accomplished by creating an appropriate training environment for all players that focuses on game understanding in the area of tactics. The quality and mastery of the technical skills within zone objectives, reproducing game intensity situations to promote the physical demands of the game, and competition to create high-quality players.

Coaches will utilize the club's curriculum library (academy software program) when organizing and reviewing training sessions. The session should not be interrupted too often so that players are allowed to freely express themselves and find solutions on their own within their groups. Coaching points should be clear and specific with details restarting practice quickly after points are made.

Just as we expect our players to develop, the club expects our coaches to continue their education. There are more opportunities now, than ever before.

- AS Roma Coaching Education (Mister Calcio)
- US Soccer Federation Licensing
- Sports Session Planner (Reserve Academy Best Practices)